SPECIAL OFFER FOR A DICTIONARY OF
YORKSHIRE SURNAMES
BY GEORGE REDMONDS

From 'Abba', a northern variant of 'Abbey', first recorded in 1570, to Yoward, meaning a 'ewe herd', which first appears in 1379, this comprehensive dictionary of Yorkshire surnames contains thousands of entries, each of which are treated to detailed explanations, not only of their linguistic meaning but also their geographical origin and their changing distribution through time. Each entry cites the sources, and the variant spellings through which many surnames have evolved in the last eight hundred years. The dictionary represents a lifetime of research by its well-known Huddersfield-based author and will be welcomed by all family and local historians, and by those involved in that grand academic endeavour, onomastics, the science of name study.

The book is a substantial 864-page cloth-bound hardback, with a laminated colour dustwrapper. It can be ordered post-free (within the UK) from the publisher, but the sheer size and weight of it means there will be a surcharge for overseas orders: £8 for Europe, £12 for USA or Australia (a contribution to postage, not the full cost).

The contents are: Acknowledgments, vi; Abbreviations, vii-xvii; bibliography, xviii-xviii; Introduction, 1-5; The Dictionary, 6-835; Appendix on 'The most popular surnames in Britain in 1881', 836-841.

864 pages [xx + 844]; hardback (real cloth, colour dustwrapper), 978-1-907730-43-6, £49.50
